

Henray Cohen, CFA Named April Volunteer of the Month

Our April Volunteer of the Month, Henray Cohen, CFA, values the strength of CFA Society Los Angeles' (CFALA's) membership and focuses his volunteer efforts on ensuring that CFALA provides first-rate services and that quality members continue to join the community.

"Having the opportunity to meet a number of brilliant people [at CFALA] who work in different industries has been incredibly valuable. Many of whom I might not have been exposed to otherwise, which is why there is so much value in being a part of CFALA," Cohen said.

Cohen has been the Co-Chair of the CFALA Membership Committee for over two years. As Co-Chair of the Membership Committee, he reviews membership applications and provides approval before the applications are sent to the Board of Governors for final approval.

"The purpose of CFALA is to bring a diverse crowd of brilliant and inspiring individuals together," Cohen explained. "I feel that every time I'm at a CFALA event, I leave more motivated and inspired."

He also was a valuable member of the Website Redesign Committee, which oversaw the complete overhaul in design that premiered in June 2015 for both www.cfala.org and www.cfalacfareview.org. The Committee went through countless discussions and design concepts over the course of six months prior to the debut.

"I was involved in overseeing the website redesign, and making sure that the website's content was representative of CFALA's mission," Cohen said. "I think the new cfala.org website is now a much more useful place for Los Angeles investment professionals to learn, find job opportunities, and connect with their peers."

He received a B.A. in Business Economics from University of California, Santa Barbara. He is currently a Portfolio Manager at Northern Trust and previously worked at Deloitte & Touche.
