Fixed-Income Management 2010

4–5 October, Newport Beach, CA, USA

At Fixed-Income Management 2010, leading practitioners and researchers will offer a unique look at the current state of the global fixed-income markets and explore strategies that manage risks and take advantage of opportunities in the current environment. Covering topics ranging from security analytics and sector allocation to risk management and regulation, this year's conference brings together experts focused on one goal—uncovering investment ideas and strategies that can be executed to successfully meet client objectives.

This year's event will address many pressing questions, including:

- Will ongoing re-regulation and deleveraging stifle a successful handoff from public to private sector and contain economic growth?
- Have the fixed-income markets become too dependent on government intervention?
- Should bond investors be more concerned about near-term deflationary pressures or longer-term risk of inflation?
