CFALA to Host U.S. Global Investors CEO Speaking On “Infrastructure: A Sustainable Global Theme”

LOS ANGELES – The infrastructure needs of developing – and developed – nations offer a long-term investment opportunity for those astute enough to select the right vehicles. Frank Holmes, CEO and Chief Investment Officer of U.S. Global Investors, Inc., will address this important subject when the CFA Society of Los Angeles (CFALA) presents “Infrastructure: A Sustainable Global Theme”. The event is open to the media.

Infrastructure is a global investment opportunity that lies at the intersection of emerging markets and natural resources. China, India and other emerging nations have committed to building out their infrastructure to support their rapid economic growth. Catching up with their needs for new roads, bridges, seaports, communication networks and the like will consume huge amounts of energy and commodities. U.S. Global Investors, Inc., a San Antonio, TX-based Registered Investment Adviser, manages 13 no-load mutual funds specializing in natural resources, emerging markets and global infrastructure. U.S. Global’s funds have received numerous honors, with the Global Resources Fund (PSPFX) and the World Precious Minerals Fund (UNWPX) receiving 2007 and 2008 Lipper Fund Awards as the best overall fund in their respective categories.

Date & Time: Monday, Nov. 23, from 12 noon to 1:30

Speaker; Frank Holmes, CEO, U.S. Global Investors, Inc.
